Campion Platt and Kim Dent are frequent collaborators on interior and architectural projects, having met as undergraduates at University of Michigan’s school of design.

Campion Platt has thirty years of experience in the field, training at Columbia University’s school of architecture and going on to become a leader in New York’s design scene. He’s been ranked as an Architectural Digest Top 100 interior designer, leading global projects in celebrity interiors and luxury hospitality. His work has been published in Architectural Digest and Elle Decor.

Kim Dent is a Metro-Detroit based interior designer with fifteen years of experience in the field. She started her career in advertising as a Creative Director, leading art direction and set design for international fashion brands. Starting with full home renovations for friends, Kim followed local demand to transition her career into a full-time interiors business for high-end residential and commercial renovations.

Having established their respective design businesses, Campion and Kim reconnected to spark a prolific design partnership. Their collaborations include high-end residential and commercial projects in the Hamptons, Palm Beach, and Bloomfield Hills.
