

HC&G

Hamptons Cottages and Gardens

PHOTOGRAPH BY COSTAS PICADAS

203-227-1400
ADVERTISING@CANDG.COM

COTTAGESGARDENS.COM
f t @ COTTAGESGARDENS

gardeneering

new construction
landscape renovation
seasonal containers
lawn management
property maintenance
masonry

631.726.4498
gardeneering.net

OUR CROWD

COMMUNITY SPIRIT

While interviewing some of our favorite design professionals and local talents about their thoughts from the past two decades and the years to come (“20 Years of Great Design,” page 85), we were heartened and emboldened by their support of our efforts to continue covering the industry we know and love so deeply. “HC&G has always elevated the world of East Coast design while championing the different styles and cultures of an international audience,” landscape designer Frederico Azevedo told us. “I’m happy to celebrate its future and to have been a part of it for so many years.” Decorator Jennifer Mabley recounted how she and her husband, decorator Austin Handler, “relocated from New York City to the Hamptons 20 years ago to launch our business and start a family, just as HC&G was born,” to which her husband added, “We’re so very grateful that [our firm] Mabley Handler and HC&G are both still here, and thriving!” Architect Blaze Makoid noted that “HC&G has stayed true to its roots as one of the very few shelter magazines to cover architecture with a big ‘A,’” while real estate agent Peter Hallock said that he has “had the pleasure of watching HC&G grow, always staying on the pulse of the best in architecture and design.” And businessperson Joey Wölffer cheered us on further, advising us to “continue to be creative and publish innovative, fun projects. We appreciate all that HC&G has done for the community!”